PREFATORY ADVERTISEMENT.

In presenting this comprehensive volume to the public, it seems necessary to make a few explanations as to its aims and execution.

It is so arranged as to compress into a small, inexpensive compass, results of the vast and long-continued labors of scholars, in assisting the humble inquirer after truth to the more speedy and thorough intelligence of God's Word.

In the picture illustrations (several hundreds in number) the attempt is made to arrest the attention of the careless, as well as to allure the inquisitive to farther research, by presenting, in a lively manner, subordinate and introductory truths pertaining to the dress in which God has chosen his Word should appear to men. No illustration of the language, or of the allusions of Scripture, has been overlooked merely because it might seem insignificant. The aim has, however, been to introduce nothing simply ornamental, or not strictly illustrative, more or less, either of the immediate subject or some other biblical truth with which the attentive reader readily connects it. The importance of the pictorial method, in educating the young mind especially, is too well acknowledged to need remark.

The Concordance, which forms a part of this volume, needs no further recommendation than its use will at once secure for it.

The Guide is the best short introduction to the critical and practical study of the Bible which has appeared in the language; it will be appreciated by those who know the value of an early direction to the fountain-heads of Bible learning. Such will feel grateful to Mr. Carpenter for the waymarks he has so judiciously set up, in every path of sacred literature.

The Biography has been produced by several hands. After the letter D, it was intrusted (under Dr. Jenks's supervision) principally to Prof. J. P. Cowles, well known as a ripe classical scholar, and one of the instructors at the Oberlin Institute, in Ohio. The original plan of giving full lists of all the works of each author, in a separate type, could not be followed out, in the space necessarily allotted; and the principal works alone are mentioned. The notices will probably be found sufficiently large for the general reader, who will be directed by them to the sources of further information. The practical value of such biographies as those of Scott, Henry, Doddridge, &c., need not certainly be insisted on with those into whose hands this volume will naturally fall. Horne's abridged List of a Select Biblical Library, appended to this Biography, will save the young student many weary and profitless hours

Of the Index to the Bible Text, it would perhaps be sufficient to say that it is the production of that profound, accurate, and unwearied scholar, the lamented Greenfield; and that it forms a part of Bagster's Comprehensive Bible. A slight inspection will show its terseness, judiciousness, compactness, neatness, and solid value.

In the Symbol Dictionary it is believed there is a richness of Scripture illustration, seldom or never found in the compass of so few pages; and, further, this is so arranged and printed as to make a pleasant reading-book by itself, even to the younger class of investigators.

The Tables are carefully selected from Dr. A. Clarke, Townsend, Carpenter, and the Encyclopædia Americana. The table of General Chronology commences with the Creation of the World, and goes on to the time of the Reformation from the grand corruptions of Christianity by selfishness and spiritual pride; thus including the chief part of the Scripture prophetic history. The Tables are so printed as to give room for the pencil interlineations a student often finds it pleasant and useful to make, especially in historical investigations.

DESIGNED AS A COMPLETE BOOK OF REFERENCE ON ALL RELIGIOUS SUBJECTS, AND COMPANION TO THE BIBLE; FORMING A CHEAP AND COMPACT LIBRARY OF RELIGIOUS KNOWLEDGE. EDITED BY REV. J. NEWTON BROWN. ILLUSTRATED BY WOOD CUTS, MAPS, AND ENGRAVINGS ON COPPER AND STEEL.

PUBLISHERS' ADVERTISEMENT.

THE present is an age, and ours is a country, demanding great condensation and brevity in writers who would secure attention. So active and busy are the habits of the mass of our countrymen, that they have neither time nor patience to turn and peruse the pages of the cumbersome quartos and folios of the 17th century; while a tolerable competency would scarcely suffice for the purchase of the numerous works of which the modern press is so fruitful, on the subjects embraced in this volume. The work then combining and condensing the most valuable results of the researches of the best writers on any subject, while it will be most likely to be received with favor, will at the same time be best calculated to facilitate the acquisition, and consequently the diffusion of knowledge. With these views the "COMPREHENSIVE COMMENTARY on the Bible" was projected; and its unprecedented sale has encouraged the same publishers to offer to the public the present volume. The subjects embraced in this work are interesting to ALL, and as it is not designed to be in the least sectarian, or denominational, it cannot fail to be desirable for all, whether professedly religious or not, at least as a book of reference.

The following are some of the peculiarities of the plan:—

1. It is designed to be a standard and permanent work; and here it is believed will be found collected and compressed in one super-royal octavo volume of upwards of twelve hundred pages, in a shape combining convenience and cheapness, and in a style blending the sweetness of the popular with the richness of the profound, what has heretofore been scattered through more than forty volumes, and mixed with much of little or no value. Among the works, all the valuable matter of which will be found in this, together with some from which copious extracts have been made, are the following:—

THEOLOGY.

Buck's Theological Dictionary.
Watson's Biblical and Theological Dictionary.
Jones' do. do. do. do.
Hawker's Poor Man's do. do.

CHRISTIAN DENOMINATIONS AND FALSE RELIGIONS.

Evans' Sketches of Denominations.
Hannah Adams' History of All Religions.
Jones' do. do. do.
Doddridge on Errors in Religion.

LIVES OF MARTYRS AND RELIGIOUS BIOGRAPHY.

Fox's Book of Martyrs.
Middleton's Evangelical Biography.
Bethune's do. do.
Clissold's do. do.
Elliot's do. do.
Allen's Biographical Dictionary.
Davenport's do. do.
Jones' Religious Biographical Dictionary.

MISSIONS.

Williams' Missionary Gazetteer.
Edwards' do. do.
Brown's do. do.

DICTIONARIES and other works illustrative of the Bible.

Calmet's Dictionary of the Bible.
Brown's do. do. do.
Barr's Scripture Help.
Wells' Scripture Geography.
Horne's Introduction to the Study of the Scriptures.
Harris' Scripture Natural History.
Carpenter's do. do. do.
Abbott's do. do. do.
Jahn's Archaeology.
Paxton's Illustrations.
Harmer's Observations.
Burder's Oriental Customs.
Sherwood's Scripture Types.

ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY.

Mosheim's Ecclesiastical History.
Milner's Church History.
Jones' do. do.

☞ Many articles are original, especially those relating to the principal sects in this country, as will be seen on reference to the fourth paragraph below.

2. It is designed for a complete book of reference on ALL religious subjects; to which a person can turn when any thing occurs in reading or conversation connected with Religion which he does not understand, or in regard to which he wishes to refresh his memory, as he would to a dictionary for a definition of a word. Nearly every subject treated in the books which form the basis of this, is touched upon; but those which are of minor importance are very brief, and those of greater utility handled more at length. Articles rarely recurred to will be found here; but it is not burdened with any thing that is altogether useless.

3. In Theology, Buck's Dictionary is followed; in its evangelical cast and general candor, in its copious illustrations of important topics, and its valuable references to the best works on both sides of the question.

☞ The edition which has been used is the new one lately published in England, edited by Prof. HENDERSON, who has added nearly five hundred new articles, which will be found incorporated in this.

4. The accounts of the History, Doctrines, &c. of different denominations, have been prepared with an aim at the strictest impartiality. Where it was practicable some leading man of the principal sects existing in this country has been employed to prepare the article relating to it; and where it has not been, the matter has been drawn from some one or more prominent writer of the denomination, of acknowledged authority. THE WORK DOES NOT AIM TO EFFECT A COMPROMISE of opinions among the different denominations of Christians, but to present the views of each fully, and in their own words, leaving the reader to form his own conclusions as to which is most correct. This must be a truly acceptable course to all who can respond to the sentiment quoted by Robert Hall, "Amicus Plato, amicus Socrates, sed magis amica VERITAS."

The following are some of the contributors under this head:—

BAPTISM. Pedobaptist Views, Rev. J. TRACY, Baptist Views Rev. Prof. KNOWLES.
CONGREGATIONALISTS Prepared by a member, and revised and sanctioned by Rev. Prof. EDWARDS, of Andover Theological Seminary, and Rev. Dr. WISNER, of Boston.
CHRISTIANS. Rev. J. V. HIMES, Boston.
METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH. Rev. S. W. WILLSON, Editor Zion's Herald, Boston.
PRESBYTERIANS. Rev. Prof. MILLER, of Princeton Theological Seminary.
PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CHURCH. Rev. Mr. BOYLE, of Boston.
FREEWILL BAPTISTS. Elder SAML. BEEDE.
PROTESTANT METHODIST CHURCH. Rev. T. F. NORRIS, President of the Massachusetts District Conference.
UNIVERSAL RESTORATIONISTS. Rev. PAUL DEAN.
UNIVERSALISTS. Rev. LUCIUS PAGE.

5. To adapt it to popular use, all words in foreign languages have been omitted; or where Hebrew, Chaldee, and Greek terms unavoidably occur, they are given in English characters.

6. Scripture Biography, which occupies a large space in most Bible Dictionaries, is handled here in the briefest manner possible—giving only the characteristic outlines, except when difficulties occur which require to be cleared up.

7. In consequence of the space thus gained, the new department of Religious Biography is made full and extensive; embracing, it is believed, every distinguished religious writer, preacher, and character, including the most distinguished females, and those philanthropists who were actuated by religious principles. Every denomination will find here notices of its most illustrious men, especially such as have lived and died in this country, from its settlement to this time. To every notice of an author a list of his principal writings (so far as possible) is given, with a reference to the best biographies of the individual.

8. As a Dictionary and Gazetteer of the Bible, the work will be found, it is believed, full and copious, adapting it to the wants of SABBATH SCHOOLS. In the notices of the various cities and countries mentioned in the Bible, the fulfilment of the Prophecies regarding them, so far as developed, are particularly noticed.

9. The object of the ENCYCLOPEDIA being to do good on evangelical principles, the work preserves throughout, as far as possible, a devotional and practical, as well as a critical, picturesque, and popular character, that it may minister to the heart, no less than to the judgment and the imagination.

10. MAPS AND ENGRAVINGS, as well as WOOD CUTS, have been added to enrich and adorn, as well as illustrate the work.

On the whole, the amount of information embodied in this work is very great, and it is hoped the matter, by collation, arrangement, abridgment, and addition, has been improved; and while it will be found interesting and valuable to Families, and those individuals who only desire to acquire general knowledge, to the SABBATH SCHOOL TEACHER and BIBLE CLASS LEADER it cannot but prove an invaluable treasure.

FESSENDEN & CO.'S

POLYGLOTT BIBLE

FOR FAMILIES.

THE ENGLISH VERSION OF THE POLYGLOTT BIBLE, in one royal octavo volume of 1300 pages on large type, embellished with Maps and Plates on steel, forming an elegant superior to any one ever published in this country, and suited to all denominations.

THE WORK CONTAINS.

I. The Old and New Testaments, according to the common and authorized version.

II. Upwards of 60,000 Marginal References and Readings, arranged in a most convenient manner in a middle column, between the two of text.

III. The Concordance of the Rev. John Brown.

IV. An Introduction to the Holy Scriptures, giving a brief history of the Bible, and a compendious view of the evidences that the Holy Scriptures and every part of them were given by inspiration of God.

V. A concise Introduction to each book of the Old and New Testaments, showing when, and by whom, and under what circumstances they were written, their genuineness, authenticity, &c.

VI. An Essay on the right interpretation of the writings in which the revelations of God are contained, by JAMES MACKNIGHT, D. D.

VII. Three Sermons on the Evidences of Christianity, by Rev. PHILIP DODDRIDGE, D. D.

VIII. A valuable Geogrophical and Historical INDEX, arranged in a new and peculiar manner, exhibiting at one view all that is interesting on those subjects in the Holy Scriptures, with references to the maps, and forming a complete Bible Gazetteer.

IX. A new and complete General Index, and a concise Dictionary of the Bible, in which the various persons places, and subjects mentioned in it are accurately referred to, and every difficult word briefly explained.

X. A number of useful and interesting TABLES.

XI. A plate exhibiting side by side the genealogy of our Savior, as given by St. Matthew and St. Luke, and reconciling their seeming discrepancies.

XII. A handsome FAMILY RECORD, engraved on wood.

XIII. It is embellished and illustrated by fourteen beautiful ENGRAVINGS AND MAPS, done on steel, in the best manner.

XIV. There are also in the work a considerable number of WOOD CUTS, illustrative of scripture manners, customs, natural history, scenery, &c.; connected with which are brief explanations, extracted from various authors.

The following are some of the principal advantages of the English version of the Polyglott Bible, over other Editions of the Holy Scriptures, with references.

I. Its originality will preëminently be found to consist in a laborious and entirely new selection and arrangement of References, in which it has been endeavored faithfully to exhibit the Scripture as its own Expositor. The advantages to the sincere reader of the sacred pages, of having constantly before him Marginal References to similar and illustrative passages, are obvious, and fully appreciated by all. 'It were to be wished,' says bishop Horsley, 'that no Bibles were printed without References. Particular diligence should be used in comparing the parallel texts of the Old and New Testaments. . . . . It is incredible,' he adds, 'to any one who has not made the experiment, what a proficiency may be made in that knowledge which maketh wise unto salvation, by studying the Scriptures in this manner, WITHOUT ANY OTHER COMMENTARY, OR EXPOSITION, THAN WHAT THE DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE SACRED VOLUME MUTUALLY FURNISH TO EACH OTHER.' References have, however, heretofore generally been confined either to Bibles of large and unwieldy size, or to those so small as to be useless or inconvenient to people advanced in life. Here is an Edition with References, which, while it is not liable to the objection now almost universally felt, against the inconvenient size and weight of the quarto editions, yet offers in a convenient shape and size, by a judicious arrangement and plan, a type as easily read as that of our largest editions, in the form of an elegant and convenient Family Bible.

II. The References and Readings have been prepared with a strict attention to two things—1. That they should not be merely repetitious, but illustrative,—and, 2. That they should not be complex and crowded, and so numerous as to be tedious and forbidding, a fault with those of Scott and others, but that they should be as full as should be deemed useful and necessary, and a MORE APPROPRIATE AND ACCURATE selection, adaptation, and arrangement, than those in any other edition. So that, while no superfluous ones have been admitted, the most material purposes to be answered by references have been effectually secured.

III. These References have the advantage of being selected from many valuable editions and commentaries in different languages.

IV. All the Marginal Readings contained in the folio and quarto Bibles are introduced; the idioms of the original languages, and also the various senses of particular words or phrases, being instructive and worthy to be known.

V. The advantages of the present arrangement of the references in a middle column, are, that they are more condensed, and yet are plain and easy to be referred to, and are not liable, as those in other editions are, to be cut in binding or worn away by use, nor to be bound so into the back of the book as not to be easily read.

VI. The Concordance will be found highly convenient, enabling any one by looking for a word in a verse or chapter, to turn immediately to it.

VII. The value of the Introductions to the Bible, and the several books, the Indexes, Gazetteer, the new Tables, Maps, &c. will be readily seen, as they all tend to assist the sincere searcher of the Scriptures, in his inquiries. The Wood Cuts and Engravings are valuable, not merely as embellishing the work, but especially as illustrating scripture manners, customs, phrases, &c. and as attracting the attention of the young. An engraving as illustrative of a particular passage, conveys at once to the eye, and more readily and permanently fixes upon the mind, the meaning of that passage, than a page of comment or explanation.

On the whole, the several advantages of the present Edition commend it to the patronage of the community as the best of the publications of the Bible ever offered to them, for compactness and combination of useful matter. Its medium size, not too large for handling with convenience, with large type for the eyes of the aged, are judged to be no trifling recommendations. The Publishers, therefore, look for some considerable portion of public favor towards this enterprise; and they indulge the hope and expectation of obtaining for the Word of God an increased circulation, and, of course, an increased influence.

☞ CONTAINING NO COMMENTS ON THE MEANING OF THE SACRED TEXT, BUT YET COMBINING A VAST AMOUNT OF ASSISTANCE FOR ITS STUDY, EXECUTED IN A BEAUTIFUL STYLE, IT CANNOT BUT BE AN ACCEPTABLE EDITION FOR THE USE OF INDIVIDUALS, AND AN ORNAMENT FOR THE TABLE OF EVERY FAMILY.

☞ It has been highly recommended by eminent ministers of all denominations.

☞ 'The Polyglott Bible,' with the 'Encyclopædia of Religious Knowledge' and 'Bush's Illustrations of the Scriptures,' form together a very complete apparatus for studying the Bible for all who cannot afford or do not desire a Commentary.

ADVERTISEMENT TO THE LONDON EDITION.

This edition of a very portable and useful Concordance [with the vast advantage of a SINGLE alphabet] is very considerably improved.

1. It contains several additions and corrections, left by the late pious compiler, in the margin of a copy of the last edition, which he appears to have carefully looked over, with a view to future republication.

2. The parts of speech are more accurately distinguished than in either of the preceding editions.

3. The natural history, as far as it is here inserted, of different beasts, birds, trees, plants, and precious stones, has been greatly amended.

4. The definitions of proper names derived from the Hebrew, Greek, Latin, &c., have been compared with the originals, and several hundreds of alterations made, in order to make the name express some property of the primitive word. This was a work of considerable difficulty and perplexity; for, although many names are unimportant as to their significations, yet others are of great consequence, their grammatical meaning being frequently referred to in the sacred text itself, so that the true definition is essentially necessary to a proper understanding of the passage in which such words occur. But, in a Concordance, like this, definitions cannot be greatly extended; care, however, has been taken to make those introduced as accurate as possible; though corrections of this kind might have been carried to a much greater length.

5. In the definitions of some theological terms, a few alterations have been made, which it is hoped will appear to be an improvement. But as several readers may probably think the former definitions best, they are introduced below, [omitted in the present edition, Am. Ed.] in order to obviate all cause of complaint; for, though the alterations made appear to the Editor to be more consistent with the nature and words of God, yet, as many pious and excellent men may be of a contrary mind, such are freely left to their own mode of thinking, and candor requires that the words should be restored to them, by which, on these subjects, they have been accustomed to express their thoughts. A few slight and verbal alterations have been left unnoticed, being of comparatively little importance.

6. In the former editions of this work there were inserted two tables, entitled, A Collection of the Names and Titles given to Jesus Christ; and A Collection of the Appellations given to the Church of God in the Scriptures. These were taken from the large work of Mr. Cruden, of which they never made a valuable part. By the advice of every judicious person, whom the Editor has consulted on the point, these tables have been omitted, as being very exceptionable in almost every point of view, and having scarcely one excellence, by which they can be recommended. In many cases, the unscriptural and injudicious manner in which these names and appellations have been given to Christ and the church, has had a direct tendency to pervert the judgment of the young and inexperienced, and has contributed not a little to pervert the taste of young ministers. It was judged better to omit them entirely, than to alter them.

Great care has been taken to have the references correct according to the last edition, and it is presumed that in the main they are so; but in so many hundred thousand figures, several of which may be easily mistaken for others, it would be unreasonable to expect that no mistakes have been made. It is hoped, however, that it will not be found much inferior to the standard according to which it professes to be formed.

To enter upon a character of the work would be unnecessary. It has been many years before the public; and they have decided on its merit. It is, without exception, the most useful and valuable work of its kind in a portable size.

 The American Editor has to add to the above, only, that where there was a material difference between the definitions adopted by Dr. A. Clarke and Butterworth, and Cruden's, the latter have been inserted. Other changes have been made, slight as to words, important as to the arrangement of the page, rendering the work vastly more easy of consultation.

The most important improvement, however, on all former Concordances, will be found to be the introduction of engravings, from authentic monuments, travellers, and modern customs, which complete, under their respective words, the illustrations, pictorial and otherwise, given in the Commentary. A lively and pleasant appeal to the eye here infixes an illustration in the mind, often better than pages of prose.

The abbreviations of the Scripture Books have also been shortened, both to save space, and to relieve the eye by rendering the lines more distinct.

May, 1838. WM. JENKS.

EVERY STUDENT OF THE BIBLE, even at the outset, acknowledges the IMPORTANCE, the NECESSITY, the INDISPENSABLENESS of a CONCORDANCE; and the sooner it is procured, the greater will be the saving of time and labor. Persons unacquainted with the nature of Concordances, may observe the following

DIRECTIONS.

1. The word sought is inserted only at full length at the head of the class: in every following line, the first letter is put for it; as, A. is put for AARON, c. for COMMAND, &c.; and if two words head the class, a short ellipsis, or line, is put before or after the initial letter for the word; as, for ABODE there, is put a-, or there ABODE, -a.

2. Where two distinct quotations are in one line, they are by this mark (‖) divided; but those texts which follow a quotation, and where the above mark is not inserted, are to be considered as synonymous or parallel passages. This mark (|) is to separate one chapter and verse from another.

3 The marginal reading, which is of considerable use, is distinguished by an obelisk (†).

4. The parts of speech are in general marked, s. for substantive, r. for verb, a. for adjective, p. for participle, ad. for adverb, c. for conjunction, pr. for preposition, and i. for interjection. Proper names, being all substantives, are not marked.

B.

BAAL, A lord, master, husband, or patron. It was Jezebel's god; the god of the Zidonians; a name common to many of the deities of the heathen. We read of Baalim in the plural number, for there were gods many of this name. It was made in the form of a young heifer; see Tobit, 1:15. Some say it was put for the sun; others say it represented Jupiter.

BABYLON, Confusion, or mixture. The capital of Chaldea. 'A famous city, built four-square, 60 miles in circumf., 15 on each side. The walls were 87 feet thick, and 350 high, on which were built 30o towers, or, according to others, 250, three between each gate, and seven at each corner. The gates were 100, 25 on each side, and all of solid brass. From these ran 25 streets, crossing at right angles, each 150 feet wide, and 15 miles in length. A row of houses faced the wall on every side, with a street of 200 feet wide between them and it. Thus the whole city was divided into 625 squares, each 4 furlongs and a half on every side. All round these squares stood the houses, fronting the streets, and the empty space within served for gardens,' &c. Babylon was one of the 7 wonders of the world. The prophet calls Babylon the golden city, Is. 14:4, the glory of kingdoms, the beauty of the Chaldees' excellency, chap. 13:19.

BAPTISM, s. is, '(1) The outward ordinance, or sacrament, wherein the washing with water represents the cleansing of the soul from sin by the blood of Christ, Lu. 7:29. 1 Pe. 3:21. (2) Inward spiritual washing, whereby the gifts and graces of the Spirit, signified by the outward sign, are really and actually bestowed, Mat. 3:11. (3) The sufferings of Christ, whereby he was consecrated and prepared for his entrance upon his kingly office, Mat. 20:22. Lu. 12:50. (4) So much of the gospel as John the Baptist taught his disciples when he baptized them, Ac. 18:25.' CRUDEN.
A large portion of the Christian church, as is well known, hold sprinkling to be a valid administration of the ordinance; to which they think immersion not essential. Dr. A. Clarke's Buttercroth gives the following definitions:—'Baptism is, (1) An ordinance of the N. T., instituted by Christ, Mat. 28:19. whereby the person is, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, immersed in and covered with water, as a sign of his death to sin, and resurrection to newness of life here, and to life eternal hereafter, and of the influence of the Holy Spirit, Ro. 6:3,4,5. Col. 2:12. (2) It is put for, The plentiful effusion of the grace and gifts of the Holy Spirit, Ac. 1:5. (3) The overwhelming sufferings of Christ, Mat. 20:22. Ps. 69:2. (4) A vital union to, and oneness with Christ, through the all-pervading operations of the Holy Spirit, 1 Co. 12:13.'

CANAAN, The name of the country where Canaan and his posterity dwelt. It is about 200 miles in length, from Dan on the N., to Beersheba on the S.; and from E. to W. about 80 miles. It lies in the 32d, 33d, and 34th degrees of N. latitude, and in the 36th and 37th of E. longitude, from London. It was a land flowing with milk and honey, which is the glory of all lands, Ez. 20:6. God promised this land to Abraham and his seed; and it was a type of the glory of the gospel rest in Christ, to believers here; and of the saints' everlasting rest hereafter, in the kingdom of heaven.

CHOZEBA, Men liars, 1 Ch. 4:22.
CHRIST, The anointed of God; the same with the Hebrew Messiah, Ps. 45:7. Is. 61:1. In his divine nature he is equal with the Father, and over all, God blessed forever; but in his humaa nature, subordinate and inferior to the Father, being like to men in all things, sin ex- cepted Both natures are united in the person of Christ, that he might be our prophet, priest, and king, and the author of a complete, perfect, all-sufficient, and eternal salvation.

In Christ all the types, prophecies, and promises centre. He is the most suitable object for the sinner to look to, trust in, and expect all his joys and consolations from, as alone by him life and salvation are procured. He is the head of princi palities and powers, the brightness of his Father's glory, and the express image of his person, He. 1:3. the glory of all worlds, and the refulgent luminary of the universe, Jn. 1:9. the inexhausted fountain of all the treasures of nature, grace, and glory, Jer. 2:13. and the matchless, incomparable Redeemer of all that come to him, Jn. 6:37. Christ was the grand subject of all the apostles' ministry, Ac. 8:5. And, indeed, a sermon without Christ, is like a cloud without water, or a shadow without substance.
Christ is taken for the mystical body of Christ, himself the head, and his church the members, which make up but one body, 1 Co. 12:12. Likewise for the doctrine of Christ, Ep. 4:20. And for the Spirit, with his gifts and graces, Ro. 8:10.

EAGLE, s. A bird of prey, the king of birds, frequently mentioned in Scripture. It is declared unclean, Le. 11:13, as are all other birds of its species; as the Sea-eagle, and the Eagle called Ossifrage, because it breaks the bones in order to extract the marrow. The hawk and vulture may also be reckoned as different species of eagles. It is of great courage, so as to set on harts and great beasts. It flies very high, Pr. 30:19, yet in the twinkling of an eye seizes on its prey, whether on the earth or in the sea. It builds its nest very high in the tops of rocks, Jb. 39:27. It preys not on small birds, but on geese, hares, harts, serpents, and dead carcasses, Mat. 24:28. To provoke its young ones to fly, it flutters over them, and takes them on its wings, De. 32:11. Is. 40:31. It moults and loses its feathers yearly, at which seasons it is very feeble, so as neither to hunt its prey, nor create terror in other birds, as usual; but soon recovers its native vigor again, Ps. 103:5.

HOPE, s. 'is a firm expectation of all promised good things, so far as may be for our good and God's glory, but especially of eternal salvation.'
Hope is founded on the promise and oath of God, the grace, blood, righteousness and intercession of Christ; and the earnest of the Holy Spirit in our hearts. The subject of hope is a believer. The objects of hope are things, (1) Good. (2) Great. (3) Future. (4) Hard, yet possible. (5) Promised. (6) Proper for, and suitable to us.
Again, hope is a fruit of faith, and is distinct from it, as it hath for its objects only things future and good; but the objects of faith are good and evil, past, present, and to come.
Hope is put for, (1) The things hoped for, Col. 1:5. (2) Jesus Christ, Ac. 28:20. (3) A certain persuasion, 2 Co. 1:7. (4) The matter or ground of hope, Pr. 19:18. (5) The whole of religion, Ep. 1:18. | 2:12.
